

SALMON FISHING CODE

- 1 All those fishing should observe this fishing code as well as adhere to the fishing regulations laid down by the governments of Finland and Sweden.
- 2 If you do not know a particular river well ask local fishermen for advice on how to move and fish safely without disturbing others. Take care of yourself – there are no alternative to the use of life jackets.
- 3 Navigate motorboats along lanes to specifically marked points for coming ashore. During high water the navigation line is generally in the centre of the river while at low water it may be elsewhere.
- 4 Always avoid navigating through waters where stationary fishermen are fishing. Navigate a safe distance and reduce your speed.
- 5 Do not start fishing until it is your turn. Queue jumping only causes disputes.
- 6 If there are other fishermen waiting for their turn to row out, come ashore and wait for your next turn. Do not start fishing downstream from boats located in the waiting area.
- 7 Do not prolong your fishing at any given fishing spot. This only causes disturbance to others.
- 8 Always give way to fishermen who have hooked a salmon. Remember that the salmon may be up to two hundred meters away from the fisherman. If necessary reel in your own lines.
- 9 Only light fires at official campfire sites and log shelters situated on the riverbank. Do not damage living trees. Shelters are intended as short-term resting places and not for overnight accommodation.
- 10 Do not litter! Take your rubbish with you or put it in the waste sacks intended for the purpose. Combustible waste may be burned on the campfire. Protect your fragile natural environment wherever you are.
- 11 Don't forget to submit a notification of your catch – it's more important than you think! The notification can be filled in at most of the places that sell licences, as well as in sports shops, campsites and online at www.saalisilmoitus.fi.
- 12 Do not be greedy! Remember that salmon does not keep for more than a couple of months even in a deep freezer. The Catch Quota is just one (1) salmon per day on both Finnish and Swedish sides of the river. A one-day licence entitles you to take away one (1) salmon while your licence is valid.

RULE CHANGES CAN BE POSSIBLE.
